REAL TWISTER ROARS ACROSS THUNDER BAY

Ontario District's First
Tornado

STORM APPROACHES AT LIGHTNING PACE

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Aug. 23 (P).—Leaving a trail of destruction along a 100-mile path, what is believed to be the first tornado in the history of the Thunder Bay district, roared over the section south and west of Fort William late yesterday.

The tornado ripped across ten townships, leveled the farm buildings of Urho Pillo and Matt Allanan, killed cattle, uprooted trees and telephone poles and damaged numerous buildings in its path.

First word of the storm received here came from A. Kallio, driver of a bus that crossed the track of the twister. He had heard of nobody being injured, he said. Later, news of property damage was received, as communication with the district was re-established.

HOME DESTROYED
Pillo, whose farm is on the banks of the Whitefish River, three miles north of Silver Mountain, was hard hit by the blast.

He and his family were left homeless after the wind had ripped their house to pieces, blown down their garage, rolled their automobile over five times and scattered their personal belongings far and wide. Clothing of Mrs. Pillo and her daughter was picked up six miles east of the farm this morning.

The tornado crossed the Whitefish River valley, then swept down a 100-mile track to Nolana and thence across the International Boundary, where it apparently blew itself out.

The Pillo family and several

Commander Frank Hawks,
Fatally Hurt in Plane
Crash Near Buffalo

EAST AURORA, N.Y., Aug. 23 (P).—Frank Hawks, internationally-known flyer, was fatally injured tonight in a flaming plane crash less than a year after he gave up for "safety" and "comfort" the speed flying which made him famous.

His companion, J. Haze Campbell, East Aurora socialite, was also fatally injured when the tiny Gwynn aircraft they were flying smashed into a high-tension wire and fell to the earth in flames. He died an hour after Hawks.

Horrified farmers in the area pulled the two men from their burning craft, but they died a few hours later in a Buffalo hospital. The airplane burned to a mass of twisted wreckage.

A fire extinguisher in the plane exploded, adding to the danger to those seeking to aid the two men.

WIDELY-KNOWN FLYER
Lieut.-Commander Frank Monroe Hawks rode to fame a decade ago as one of the United States greatest speed demons.

A native of Marshalltown, Ia., he won renown in February, 1929, when he and a mechanic flew non-stop from Los Angeles to New York in 18 hours and 21 minutes for a new trans-continental record.

For the next five years he was continually in the headlines. His breath-taking exhibitions of speedy flying brought him claim to no fewer than 214 point-to-point records, including two from Vancouver.

Distinguished Educationists in Conference

From all provinces in Canada, from many States in the Union to the South, from New Zealand, Australia and Norway, delegates are attending the first International Conference on Correspondence Education, the sessions of which are being held at the Empress Hotel this week. Many interesting addresses have been delivered, showing the important part correspondence instruction has come to play in the life of people living in isolated rural areas, particularly, and also in equalizing educational opportunities for many city dwellers. One of the biggest groups from any individual section of the country is from Nebraska, which is represented by twelve delegates. The above photograph was taken on the steps of the Empress Hotel during a recess in the round-table conferences, yesterday morning.

B.C. PLEDGE OF SUPPORT

Premier Pattullo to Urge
Ottawa Towards Action
On Alaska Highway

Premier Pattullo got a positive response from his Washington, D.C., visits when members of the second United States commission appointed to inquire into the possibility of construction of a highway link through British Columbia and the Yukon to Alaska, called at his offices here, yesterday, suggesting that Canada name its representatives on that commission.

The Premier said he would urge action on the issue when he goes to Ottawa in September, and repeated his belief in the need for the highway.

ENDORSE PROJECT

Representatives Warren G. Magnusson, Donald MacDonald and James W. Carey formed the United States delegation that met the Premier. They spoke enthusiastically in favor of the feasibility of actual construction, and pointed out that light-graveled sections of the route could be put through for $6,500 per mile.

The highway itself presented no major engineering problems, and previous surveys had shown the feasibility of the whole plan, they submitted; asking Canadian concurrence in commission inquiry at that stage.

WILL ASK OTTAWA
Premier Pattullo pledged his Government to renewed efforts at Ottawa, to have the Commission appoint members on the investigating body. He would take up the subject with R. H. W. Mackenzie King when he went East this Fall, Premier Pattullo said.

The visiting commissioners spent several hours in the city, and were shown over the Legislative Building by Premier Pattullo, in person.

Kootenay Miner Dies of Injuries

TRAIL, B.C., Aug. 23 (P).—August (Gus) Beckman, injured last week when caught in a cable at the local mine, died in hospital here today. It was found necessary to amputate his leg.

Beckman was at the bottom of the mine shaft, filling ore buckets, when the cable tugged around his leg and dragged him to the top of the shaft.

A fire extinguisher in the plane exploded, adding to the danger to those seeking to aid the two men.

Brilliant Batting of Leonard Hutton Causes Intense Excitement—All Previous Marks for International Matches Fall at The Oval

London, Aug. 23 (P).—Leonard Hutton, twenty-two-year-old cricketer who comes from a town named Pudsey, made more news in England today than any war scare. He did it by scoring more runs than anyone else ever scored in the sixty-four-year history of cricket between England and Australia for "the Ashes."

Batting since Saturday noon, he hung up 364 runs for England. It took thirteen and one-half hours to get him out. It was estimated he had run six and one-half miles.

Hutton's total surpassed Don Bradman's former record of 334 for Anglo-Australian rivalry, and also excelled Wally Hammond's 336 against New Zealand, which had stood as the record for test cricket.

Thanks to Hutton's batting, England likewise established an all-time high in international compe-

DANUBIAN COUNTRIES SEEK HUNGARY'S AID

HELIGOLAND, Germany, Aug. 23 (P).—Hungary's ruler saw Germany's Gibraltar today in a state visit marked by official silence on political discussions between German and Hungarian chiefs of state.

When he inspected the fortifications of this island stronghold with Chancellor Hitler this afternoon, Admiral Nicholas Horthy, the Hungarian regent, saw what even Premier Mussolini wasn't shown on his state visit to Germany last September.

The Premier said he would urge action on the issue when he goes to Ottawa in September, and repeated his belief in the need for the highway.

Campaign to Be Directed From Nanking

SHANGHAI, Aug. 24 (P).—Japanese sources disclosed today that the Japanese army headquarters was being transferred from Shanghai to Nanking, 175 miles up the Yangtze River.

It was expected the transfer would stimulate the juggling campaign to assist Hankow and strengthen the Japanese-dominated Government in the former Chinese capital. Nanking was captured last December 13.

One Japanese division was reported remaining in the Shanghai area and it was said a naval force soon would take over the military administration of this district.

tition with its first innings' total of 903 for seven wickets, declared.

When Hutton passed Bradman's record, players on both sides stopped play to congratulate him. A white-coated waiter hurried out on the field with a drink for him, and the crowd of 30,000 sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Pudsey went wild with excitement.

Alderman Simeon Myer telephoned congratulations to Hutton every time he scored fifty more runs. The last wicket said: "The bells are ringing in Pudsey."

MAKING PROGRESS ON CZECH DISPUTE

PRAGA, Aug. 23 (P).—Constitutional reforms designed to meet complaints of the disaffected Sudeten German regions of Czechoslovakia were considered by the British mediation mission today.

After a meeting between Viscount Runciman, the British mission, and President Edouard Benes, other members of the British staff began a study of the present Czechoslovak constitution with a parliamentary committee of six.

It was indicated that Lord Runciman wished to explore the possibility of bringing internal peace to Czechoslovakia through constitutional changes without involving a complete reorganization of the form of the State.

Growing Popularity Of Correspondence Instruction Shown

Story of Pioneer Experiment at Benton Harbor, Mich., Told to Educational Conference by J. S. Noffsinger, of Washington, D.C.

THE Benton Harbor Plan, an experiment in supervised correspondence education, which went into effect in 1922 at Benton Harbor, Michigan, and proved so successful that it has formed the basis of the well-developed Nebraska correspondence study courses suitable for use in small high schools throughout that state, was described in detail yesterday afternoon to the International Conference on Correspondence Education, by J. S. Noffsinger, director of National Home Study Council, Washington, D.C.

The meeting, in the lower lounge of the Empress, was presided over by R. C. Haight, deputy superintendent of public instruction, Helena, Montana.

During the same meeting Dr. Reed, head of the extension department of the University of Nebraska, spoke for a few minutes about the part played by correspondence education in helping students to make up their studies. Interest and faith in supervised correspondence study was increasing so rapidly that there were certain further meetings of the International Conference would be increasingly well attended. J. W. Gibson, director of high school correspondence instruction, Department of Education, Victoria, also gave a paper at this meeting.

BENTON HARBOR PLAN

Supervised correspondence instruction was born in the United States in a split of revolt against "rankness" which grew against pupils mechanical drafting. Not equipped for this work, he succeeded in keeping just a short distance ahead of his students by taking a correspondence course in machine design. Shortly afterward, becoming principal of the high school at Benton Harbor, he recognized that there was need for more advanced classes than were available in the town, and carried out satisfactory negotiations with a private correspondence school to this end. The school authorities willingly co-operated.

Eventually the idea developed, new correspondence method became an integral part of the high school programme for the teaching of vocational subjects, with a teacher in charge, supervising the correspondence work. The enrollment increased, and each of the fourteen subsequent years had seen the further development of the method, until today the school had 304 pupils and thirty-eight different correspondence courses, all of vocational nature.

During the recent depression, when costs of education were under scrutiny, the correspondence department at Benton Harbor had come in for its share of criticism. But Mr. Mitchell had been able to show that it was the most economical department in the school, costing $7.01 per pupil per year as compared, by the class method, to $23.95 for agriculture, $17.31 for home economics, and $14.60 for physical science.

Similar experiments, it was stated, had been tried at more than 100 public high schools in the United States just prior to the inauguration of the Benton Harbor plan. Its value had now been proved for the isolated student, for the enriching of the curriculum in the small high schools, and for vocational guidance.

IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

The peculiar suitability of correspondence instruction to a province like British Columbia was ably indicated by J. W. Gibson, in his discussion of "Correspondence Instruction as a Factor in the Equalizing of Educational Opportunity in British Columbia."

It was not to be wondered at that in such a large and sparsely populated province there should be a marked inequality of educational opportunity. British Columbia had an area of 372,830 square miles, larger than the combined areas of Washington, Oregon, and California, but with a population less than that of San Francisco. Development of primary industries, fishing, trapping, mining, lumbering and ranching had resulted in many small and widely scattered settlements, some of short duration. Isolated families found their way into the remote backlands, where they were completely cut off from organized schools, he said.

BEGAN IN 1919

Up until 1919 no attempt had been made to provide educational facilities for these families. In the Spring of that year a lighthouse keeper made a request for assistance in the teaching of his children. The effort was made, and by the end of that year 122 pupils were studying under direction of teachers appointed by the Provincial Department of Education.

"The first elementary correspondence school in America was under way," Mr. Gibson noted. Year by year this important service had grown. The enrolment for the past year was the highest to date, with 1,187 pupils in the first eight grades, and 140 adults. Over 6,000 young British Columbians during the last nine years had experienced a measure of equalization of educational opportunity through this system, and the handicaps of distance from organized schools had been largely overcome for these.

Mr. Gibson told also about the extension of the method of correspondence education, to include high school students, and those cut off from school attendance by physical disability or other handicap; and for foreigners who felt the need of language training in English, more technical knowledge, vocational training and those who could benefit from more extended or more suitable curricula. High school and vocational correspondence courses had helped to remove some of these inequalities, particularly for those in outlying districts who could not attend night school. In British Columbia there was no age limit for correspondence students, and fathers and mothers, as well as their children, were among those registered.

was discussed in sectional meetings yesterday morning. There were three of these. Fred G. Stevenson, director of correspondence study, University extension division at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan, presided at Section 1, which took up the organization promotion, and accreditation of correspondence instruction. A. B. Ross, director of curricula and correspondence instruction at the Department of Education, Regina, was co-chairman at this meeting, when financing of correspondence instruction, pupil guidance, range of courses and how prepared, administration and other matters were reviewed.

Preparation of correspondence courses was the subject of Section 2, presided over by Fred T. Wilhelms, director of secondary course instruction, extension division, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Nebraska, and by C. J. Hutchings, director of correspondence instruction, Department of Education, Winnipeg. The qualifications and special training of the correspondence course writer; the revision of courses, relationship of courses to textbooks and other references; term tests and how they are administered; the building of special courses for subnormal pupils, for adult foreigners not proficient in English, and for illiterate foreigners, etc., were discussed.

The Section 3 discussions revolved round the work of the correspondence instructor, teaching, evaluating, and recording of results, the chairman being John Straka, supervisor of correspondence instruction staff, extension division, University of Nebraska, and W. G. Carpenter, director of technical education for Alberta and principal of the Institute of Technology and Art, Calgary. In this section some interesting information was given about special aids to instruction, such as prepared kits or equipment, during which reference was made to some of the correspondence school displays on view in the Duke of Kent room at the Empress Hotel during the conference.

Nanaimo Council Decides Against Licence By-Law

NANAIMO, Aug. 23.—The City Council last night, on motion of Alderman Drake, chairman of the legislative committee, and by unanimous vote, scrapped a by-law designed to license amusement machines, mechanical or otherwise. Alderman Greaves stated that it had been pointed out to him by citizens that youth of today have access to enough vice without permitting more. He said he was of the opinion such machines, in some instances, belonged to a ring.

Mayor Harrison consented to officially open the Labor Day championship meet here sponsored by Nanaimo Amateur Athletic Association.

An old-time custom of permitting the city engineer and the city manager to have their annual holidays at the same time, came under fire when Alderman Kerr pronounced it an unwise practice. Aldermen Hindmarch and Muir supported the contention. Mayor Harrison pointed out that the established custom would be changed in future, as the city manager had to return to town this week to check on things which had brought the matter to light.

SEES VALUE OF ORGANIZATION

New York Official Delivers Address to Gathering of Local Insurance Men

Organized action on the part of Canadian business firms was seen as the main reason underlying advancement of the country, a whole by Walter Bennett, general counsel of the National Association of Insurance Agents in New York at a luncheon meeting of the Victoria fire insurance agents.

"Although the insurance field is by no means the only business that has benefited from organization I can better bring out to you the unified action by noting the changes accomplished by this means in your own field," the guest speaker told the gathering of seventy-five local insurance men.

Establishment of uniform insurance rates was depicted as one of the salient changes in the insurance business within recent years, the speaker said.

Touching on the problem of responsibility for unemployment as connected with unemployment insurance, Mr. Bennett divided the unemployed class in Canada into three sections.

"The first class contains those who are indigent and who are unable to work. I firmly believe it is the duty of any Government, either in Canada or in United States, to maintain these persons," the speaker said. "The second class is composed of those who are able but are unwilling to work. These should receive no consideration whatsoever, but the last group, which is made up of those who are able and willing to work, should be provided for by industries themselves."

Mr. Bennett gave a later address to the Association of Superintendents of Insurance on residence agency laws. He will leave for New York on Wednesday.

Pass Resolution Endorsing Recent Survey of Provincial Government—Seek Co-operation in Matter—Want Vacancy Left Open

IN a resolution passed at a special meeting last evening, the Victoria School Board endorsed the recommendation of the creation of a Greater Victoria school district made in the recent school survey of the Provincial Government.

The resolution, presented by Trustee W. P. Marchant, also stated that the city school board would be glad to co-operate with the other boards of school trustees concerned and would welcome any suggestions from them as to the manner in which such amalgamation could be effected, and that a copy of the resolution will be forwarded to the boards of school trustees of Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt.

In making the motion of acceptance, Trustee Marchant said that as the senior board in the district, the Victoria trustees should be the first ones to accept the school survey recommendations. He pointed out that it would be a great advantage to have one board, instead of the four as at present.

WOULD BE OPPOSITION

Trustee W. E. Staneland, in seconding the motion, said that opposition would be registered over the amalgamation, adding that to Saanich would be doubted. He suggested a piecemeal adoption of the suggestions, commencing with the creation of a health board for the city, Oak Bay and Esquimalt. A tour of inspection of the schools will be made by the board, it was decided, following the motion of Trustee Staneland, who will prepare a schedule of visits.

The resignation of H. O. English, a teacher at the Victoria High School since 1922, was accepted.

MAY ENDEAVOR TO CHANGE LAW

Insurance Conference Discusses Question of Suicide Claims on Companies

The subject of insurance payments in the case of suicides which was before the insurance committee for Canada, last evening, was treated to a strict condemnation by R. W. Craze, K.C., of Winnipeg, of authorization by law of claims following suicide. As long as suicide was a crime and so recognized in the eyes of the law, it still was claims should not be allowed. The implied contract in the policy was all that raised the question, he said.

R. Leighson Foster, K.C., of Toronto, after the matter had been discussed at some length, took the position that if it were wise to amend the City Council with respect to leaving the vacancy on the board, caused by the death of ex-Trustee John Wallace, open until the regular election in December. Trustee Staneland said it would mean a saving of $250 to the taxpayers in suggesting that a by-election be not held. Trustee Marchant opposed the motion, stating that if the council did not take action within a month the board could fill the vacancy itself.

MOTION OF CONDOLENCE

A motion of condolence in the death of ex-Trustee Wallace to members of his family was passed by the board. Trustee Staneland paid tribute to the late member and said that during his association with him for the last two years on the school board, Mr. Wallace had always acted with the best interests of the taxpayer and the school children at heart.

The board received a letter from M. F. Hunter, city clerk, stating that the contract for the alterations to the school board offices had been let to W. J. Drysdale at a cost of $437.

A letter from Walter Yeaman, secretary of the Victoria and District Basketball Association, asking for the use of the High School gymnasium under the usual restrictions, for the forthcoming season on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday evenings, was laid on the table to be discussed in committee.

TO VARNISH GYMNASIUM

At a cost of $200 the gymnasium floor of the High School will be sanded and varnished, the board decided in accepting the report of the building and grounds committee. The board authorized the purchase of a new boiler, at a cost of $882.15, to be kept in stock and delivered next year for the east building of the Central Junior High School. The tender of the Aerostat Electric Machinery Co., Ltd., of $265 for the installation of a new lighting system in the Central Junior High School was accepted. J. E. Painter & Sons were awarded the contract for supplying wood at a figure of $435 per cord.

HIGHEST COURT DECISION

In the introduction of the subject by the insured, it was set out the report of the standing committee that by the judgment of the House of Lords confirming the Court of Appeal in the Beresford case, it was held that the contract contained in the policy, which recognises suicide after one year or more, was unenforceable. It is set out that a beneficiary for value and a preferred beneficiary may be within the principle of the exception.

The report of the committee concluded that "the doctrine of public policy as applied in the Beresford case is not appropriate to the conditions obtaining in Canada today and should yield to the principle that contracts should be upheld where no public interest is jeopardized."

The sessions of the conference will be continued all today.

PROMISES LAND FOR SETTLEMENT PLAN

Crown grant of all necessary lands was made on a definite basis, and was all that was asked of the Province at this time.

Following his private conference with Premier Pattullo, Sir Henry told representatives of the press that it was impossible, at this juncture, to state whether British Columbia would receive precedence when the Empire settlement scheme was launched.

GENERAL EXPLORATION

He explained that the Dominions as a whole were being explored, and the scheme would be started in whichever country most desired the expenditure of the $15,000,000 a year promised by the Imperial Government for settlement purposes.

Sir Henry and Counsellor Daigleish expect to be back in London on September 12, and shortly afterwards will present their report to the British Government and seek an interview with the Prime Minister and other ministers.

"We feel that the possibilities of British Columbia are greater than was contemplated, and the difficulties confronting a scheme of assisted settlement are not as great as we expected," Sir Henry said, discussing his impressions of an extensive tour of the Province.

"We were impressed with the fact that British Columbia is importing far more produce than she is offering for sale. In none of the places we have visited have we found any particular difficulties regarding the marketing of produce under a settlement scheme, though we have found a need for standardization in marketing."

NO EMBARRASSMENT

Sir Henry gave a definite assurance that should the plan be launched in British Columbia the Province would in no way be embarrassed in the matter of relief. Settler units would consist of married couples and their families, who would be recompensed by the Imperial Government during the first two years, while they were clearing the land.

The Premier was preceded by Messrs. Hart, Weir, Gray, MacPherson, Wismer and MacDonald, and will be followed today by Messrs. Pearson and Asselstine, who remained behind in connection with departmental affairs.

Mr. Pearson will stop in Vancouver to meet Mainland relief officials before going on to the convention centre.

Immigration Treated Sure Unemployment Solution by Sir Henry Page Croft

Terming restoration of mass British immigration to Canada as one sure way of obviating the present unemployment problem in the Dominion, Sir Henry Page Croft, prominent British immigrationponent, yesterday addressed a gathering of the Local Council of Women, under the auspices of the I.O.D.E. at the Y.W.C.A.

"Mass settlement of a theoretical 10,000 settlers in a fertile section of your province could not help but benefit British Columbia and the country as a whole," the speaker said. "Backed by British funds, each settler would bring between $3,000 and $3,500 into the province, as well as creating a large market for farm and household necessities that add the secondary industries.

The resignation of H. O. English, a teacher at the Victoria High School since 1922, was accepted.

RISING WHEAT STOCKS

The latest review of the world wheat situation indicates a superabundant supply. The production outlook has now given rise to fear that there will be instability in prices and that there will be a reduction in the purchasing power of the chief exporting countries. One authority claims that the 1938 wheat crop of both Northern and Southern Hemispheres may show an increase of about 250,000,000 bushels over the record crop of 1938. The old stocks of wheat now available in the world are 725,000,000 bushels, or about 150,000,000 bushels more than a year ago. The computation is that a year hence there will be stocks totaling 1,150,000,000 bushels on hand.

A correspondent of The London Times says: "The outlook for the wheat-producing countries is, therefore, causing some concern. The remedy that is finding favor with the Government in some producing countries is a subsidy on exports. Others incline to the policy of export quotas. Those who prefer quotas urge that subsidies would lead to competition on a new basis, with the size of the subsidy becoming the determining factor in effective competition between exporting countries. The policy of the quota, they claim, would avoid the perils of the subsidy, but it would necessitate an agreement between all the chief exporting countries to limit exports in accordance with the requirements of the importing countries, thereby giving some stability to prices and more confidence all round. An increase in wheat consumption will be possible at lower prices, which will stimulate the use of larger quantities for feeding farm stock."

LOCAL TARIFF WALLS

In recent years the political vocabulary has been enriched with several phrases signifying a belief in a policy of isolation and exclusion. Self-determination, self-sufficiency, economic nationalism, the rights of small nations, Sinn Fein, that is to say, "We Ourselves," are examples familiar to everybody. It should be tolerable clear that if the ideas behind these watchwords were to be adopted as guiding principles on this continent they would prove a serious menace to national unity.

In a leading article on "State Tariff Walls," The New York Times says that since the World War it has become obligatory in twenty-three States of the Union to grant preference to State products and building materials when making public purchases or awarding contracts for buildings, highways, and other works. Also twenty-seven States have established the policy of favoring residents for jobs on public works. Both States and municipalities have passed laws ostensibly in the interest of health or to protect animals and plants against disease and pests, but really for the purpose of hampering the free movement of products that would compete with local industry. The Times believes that such measures breed sectional animosities, and that if they should spread they would threaten the great national market upon which American prosperity largely depends. It adds that these indirect obstructions are clearly against the interests of every State.

Practices of the kind mentioned are only too common in the provinces of our own country. Here, as elsewhere, they foster sectionalism, and are prejudicial to the growth of national unity. Local "protection" for licensed producers of foodstuffs operates in restraint of industry and trade. It is economic nationalism on a reduced scale. The same may be said of the Sinn Fein policy, pursued in all, or nearly all, the provinces of Canada, of "protection" for local professional people. At the outset it seems innocent enough for the lawyers, physicians, and educationalists of a province to insist upon a certain standard of professional attainment and to set up examining boards to pass upon the qualifications of "immigrants" from other provinces. If the professional qualifications required are now to all intents and purposes equivalent throughout Canada, and if reciprocity in diplomas and degrees can be arranged, the maintenance of local barriers can serve hardly any useful purpose. It promotes provincialism, not nationality, and the benefit to the public is probably microscopic. It should be the aim and determination of public men in every province to look beyond provincial boundaries and achieve and maintain a national outlook.

If divisive and disruptive practices are not checked, if Sinn Fein is to be the rule of political action, the word Canadian will cease to convey any idea of nationality. It will become a mere geographical expression, or at best, a term of pretence by which to render lip service to a dead or moribund ideal.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

Medicine has been described as an industry, the product of which is the health, both physical and mental, of the community. In these days of specialization in so many branches of medical science, there is a tendency on the part of the public, perhaps on the part of the medical profession itself, to lose sight of the place in the industry of the general practitioner, and what is his exact nature and function. Attention has been drawn to this by Dr. Colin D. Lindsay on the occasion of his induction as president of the British Medical Association. He describes the general practitioner as representing the selling end of the industry, and he attempts to define his place in the matter of health and its maintenance.

The whole question of health is a personal one, although the State is attempting to interfere more and more with ways whereby the patient should seek his cure. Since it is a personal matter, Dr. Lindsay believes that the general practitioner must have a close personal relationship with the public as individuals. This relationship he says, is only possible in a family doctor, either in his present form or in some altered but essentially similar form. He sees a tendency for this branch of the profession to "sink lower and lower" in the estimation of the public, and of the student body from which the profession itself is recruited. Despite this, his belief is that the more the public are educated in matters of health, and the more health services are extended, the greater will be the need for an active and intelligent family doctor service, a service requiring wide professional training to insure early recognition of diseased states, and, as a corollary to this, the proper co-ordination of the specialist services that are daily becoming more abundant.

Dr. Lindsay insists that all general practitioners are, to a greater or less extent, psychoanalysts. The family doctor is also a specialist—a specialist in the recognition of disease in its early stages and in the helping of his fellow-men in the many little ills and troubles that beset them." His plan for greater recognition of the general practitioner comes at a time when in Great Britain there is a scheme for an extension of National Health Insurance to dependents of insured persons. This plan, he says, will bring three-quarters of the community within an official system of medical service. He urges in this connection that there should be a free choice of doctor, whether general practitioner or specialist. His belief is that in any scheme of health insurance proper recognition should be given to the essential place of the family doctor in the medical industry.

SINGLE UNEMPLOYED

Seemingly the so-called settlement between the Provincial Government and the single unemployed has fallen by the wayside. The latter are assembling again in Vancouver and seeking to have a programme of works evolved for their benefit. The problem, in some way or other, prevails in various parts of the Dominion, but it is most acute in this province. There is a suggestion that the experiment should be repeated of massing the single unemployed here to put them under the eyes of the Provincial Government in the hope that something may be attempted, as before, on their behalf. What is wanted is something in the nature of a permanent plan that will provide these men with work pending such time as industrial conditions improve to the extent of absorbing all who are willing to work. This must remain a task for governing authorities which have created the precedent of offering direct relief or employment. It may be hoped that in view of the possibility of any new mass demonstrations the Provincial Government and other responsible authorities will not dilly dally with the situation.

ELECTRIC SERVICES

A statement on behalf of the British Columbia Electric Railway Company, Ltd., appears in today's advertising columns dealing with rates charged for electric service in this city. It gives comparisons between the charges made in Victoria and Seattle and also with other representative cities. Such information will come to Victorians at an opportune time because of certain misapprehensions that have been entertained.

They will prove of particular interest to the domestic users of electric power, who will appreciate from the figures given the reductions made in charges for electric service during the past quarter of a century.

Note and Comment

By Sandham Graves

Scientists, states a news item from Los Angeles, are puzzling over the mysterious appearance of blood-red patches of water, thirty-miles long and ten miles broad, on the surface of the Pacific Ocean off Southern California. To an old whaler in one Victoria office the reports recalled memories of the Red Sea, where briny minute marine organisms upon which the Right whale feeds, color the water at certain times and, indeed, give its name to that sea. The Right, he says, are roasters, borne on marine currents far from their points of origin. Curious, but then, almost anything serves for a puzzle nowadays.

Picture the perplexity of a Grandon, Wisconsin, motorist who drove his car into a soft spot in the road outside that town recently. The car stalled, so he left it overnight. Returning next morning, the motorist saw nothing but a mud hole in the road. Positive of the location, he secured helpers, with poles twenty feet long. They probed and probed, but were unable to discover the car. The inference, of course, is that the road swallowed the car, hole bous; but perhaps he did not leave it there. Men are so absent-minded these days.

Take the case reported by The New York Times of a thirty-eight-year-old man who was said by the police to have quarreled with a woman in a passageway, and to have ended the quarrel by firing five shots from a revolver point blank at her. The police arrested the man, and recalled the incident to him; but no, he said he just couldn't remember. Of course, it may not have been the right man. You'd think a fellow would remember a thing like that, overnight anyway.

From Buffalo, The Associated Press reported the existence of a new machine an electrical device which counts the lightning bolts discharged at the earth within a fifteen-mile radius of the recorder. During one storm, the device recorded 208 lightning bolts within the course of a single day. The signals are picked up on an antenna, similar to that used in wireless installations. Which is all very well, but you can put your head out of the window and count the bolts directly if you wish. Some people do. Others just merely listen to the thunder. The catch is that it is so difficult to do anything with a lightning bolt after you have counted it.

Sister ship to the Queen Mary, but ten feet longer and improved in design the new Cunard White Star liner Queen Elizabeth, building at John Brown's yards at Clydebank, will be launched on September 28, it is announced. She will carry 2,400 passengers or 400 more than the Queen Mary. Her twelve boilers are said to be the largest ever constructed for a similar purpose, and her dynamos will generate enough electricity to supply a city of 200,000 people. Two funnels, more streamlined, and other changes, the new vessel will be truly the product of modern achievement.

"Pension" plans are springing up like mushrooms from the bare soil but they will be far less digestible in California than there is a plan to pay $30 weekly to all unemployed voters over fifty years of age. In Texas, it is $30 a month for all persons over the age of sixty-five, whether they have a vote or not. In Alberta, but perhaps we shouldn't go into that. Plans are all very well, but it is the performance that counts. When you get right down to it, the only person who is likely to pay you a pension that is actuarially sound and actually present is yourself.

You Can't Park Here
A man with a big car circled about the business district three times, seeking an opening where she could pause for half an hour while doing the family shopping. Finally she joyfully spotted a space on Government Street in front of the Arcade Building. Six times she tried to guide the wide machine into the curb without removing the fenders of a California automobile in front and a jalopy from Saanich at the rear. The seventh time she succeeded in making a perfect landing, and cut the ignition switch, as the tires kissed the concrete. With a sigh of relief she locked all doors on the car and stepped to the sidewalk. "Sorry," politely remarked a policeman who had been looking on from View Street, "this space is reserved for tourists only." —O.B.

W. A. R. Kerr, University of Alberta, Addresses Rotary Kiwanis Lunch Here

While we realize that the hobby of collecting autographs of famous people—and movie stars—has developed to tremendous proportions within the last decade, if there is anyone in Victoria who thinks that the practice is a modern one, may we suggest they reconsider? Last Sunday a Victoria resident across a former friend whom he had not seen for more than forty-four years, and naturally during the course of conversation the early days were thoroughly reviewed. Incident after incident was revived until suddenly the visitor jumped up and began running through his effects. The Victoria man watched bewildered until finally his friend emerged clutching a small autograph album triumphantly in his hand. There on one of the faded colored leaves was a message bearing his own signature dated in 1887—more than half a century old.—J.A.M.

Glimpses Over Sport

Victoria golf officials have been silent regarding Ralph Guidish's record of the Northwest early next month. The United States open champion has already been booked for Portland, Seattle, Vancouver and Spokane, but nothing definite has been set for Victoria. If Guidish is traveling with Sammy Sneed the Capital City should not miss up the opportunity of seeing one of the greatest shotmakers since the Bobby Jones era. We have another soccer game on our hands this coming Saturday when North Shore United, newly-crowned Canadian champions, face the Navy in the much-delayed Province Cup semi-final match. A big crowd will, no doubt, be on hand to greet the Dominion monarchs. Although the sailors have been training faithfully, Victorians hardly expect them to beat the smooth-functioning Maialana machine.

Time certainly marches on. Back in 1918 it was "Dixie" Fleager clashing with Jack Ballinger in the final of the P.N.W. amateur golf championship. Last week at Colwood, twenty years later, it was Fleager vs. Ballinger in the semi's of the seniors' title meet—J.D.

Bradford Washburn Returns From Geographic Society's Aerial Expedition Over High Peaks of Alaska—Discovered Largest Glacier System

CORDOVA, Alaska, Aug. 23 (AP)—How the St. Elias Mountain Range east of here has been playing a leisurely game of leap frog over the past several hundred glacier-bound centuries was explained by Bradford Washburn, twenty-seven-year-old explorer from the south.

Washburn, back from a Harvard University-National Geographic Society aerial expedition over and among the high peaks, said his party established a contact, or junction, between the massive core rock of the St. Elias Range and the coastal sediments "to the south."

"From the great folds of rock clearly visible in these sheer rock and ice cliffs on the face of Mount St. Elias, it is clear the highest peaks of this range have been bodily thrust southward over the top of younger coastal rocks, and thus gained their position as one of the greatest coastal ranges in the world," he said.

Washburn made the flight last Saturday with Pilots Bob Reeve and Harold Gillam, Dr. G. D. Hanna, geologist with the California Academy of Science, San Francisco, and Garrett Eddy, Seattle. The expedition also discovered what Washburn said he believed was the largest glacier system in the world outside the Polar icecaps.

COLD AT EDMONTON

EDMONTON—AUG. 23 (AP)—Temperatures sank to an overnight low mark of 35° above at Edmonton, but only slight frost damage in a few West-End gardens was reported. Crope in the district and in Northern Alberta generally escaped frost damage almost entirely, reports Shove.

TO THE CITIZENS OF VICTORIA:

The British Columbia Electric Railway Company, Limited, and its predecessor companies have been rendering transportation, power, light and gas services in the City of Victoria for more than forty years. There has existed during all those years a friendly relationship between the Company and the citizens of Victoria and their elected representatives, which has been of mutual benefit to all parties.

A Report has recently been made to the City Council by an Expert appointed by them on the question of the electrical service in Victoria. So far as we can judge by the Press summaries, the Report contains statements and estimated figures, many of which are inaccurate and misleading.

Without entering into a controversy on this matter and purely with the object of removing misconceptions which may easily have arisen in the minds of those who read the summary of the Report with regard to the rates charged in the City of Victoria, we would like to place before you a few simple facts.

First of all let us compare with Seattle, where we understand the City's Expert has been associated with the Seattle Municipal Plant, and bearing in mind that Seattle has seven or eight times the population of Victoria, and that, other things being equal, the larger the city the lower the rate is generally found to be. Also bearing in mind that Seattle has a Municipal Electric system, which is not liable for income taxes.

The amounts paid by domestic consumers in Seattle and Victoria for various quantities of current are shown hereunder:

	Seattle	Victoria
10 k.w.h.	$.75	$.75
20 "	1.00	1.20
40 "	2.00	2.00
60 "	2.40	2.40
100 "	3.20	3.20
200 "	5.20	5.20

As the rates in Victoria are based on floor area the larger houses would pay a little more than the above figures, but the majority of the existing customers would pay the rates named above.

When we go beyond 240 k.w.h. per month the comparison is slightly in favor of Seattle but the customers' bills reaching this figure are a very small percentage of the total.

In case you wish to check these figures yourself, the following are the rates charged in the two cities:

SEATTLE—First 40 k.w.h. 5c per k.w.h. Next 200 k.w.h. 2c per k.w.h. Over 240 k.w.h. 3/4c per k.w.h.

VICTORIA—For houses of 1,000 sq. ft. floor area or less: First 30 k.w.h. 6c per k.w.h. All over 30 k.w.h. 2c per k.w.h.

The majority of the customers come in this class.

For houses in excess of 1,000 sq. ft. floor area: Add 2 k.w.h. for each 100 sq. ft. of such excess up to 2,000 sq. ft. and add 1 k.w.h. for each 100 sq. ft. over 2,000 ft. up to 3,000 feet at the first step of the rate.

Consumers in Victoria who use more than 200 k.w.h. per month usually have an electric water heater on a separate service, the charge for which is less than 1c per k.w.h.

Further comparisons with well-known cities are given below:

Company or Municipal Plant	Population	10 sq. ft.	25 sq. ft.	50 sq. ft.	100 sq. ft.	200 sq. ft.
Victoria	Co. 39,300	$.75	$ 1.50	$ 2.20	$ 3.20	$ 5.20
Seattle	Mun. 365,583	.75	1.25	2.20	3.20	5.20
Bellingham	Co. 30,823	1.00	1.25	2.30	3.80	6.20
Everett	Co. 30,567	1.00	1.25	2.30	3.80	6.20
Spokane	Co. 115,514	.70	1.30	2.25	3.75	6.15
Portland	Co. 301,815	1.00	1.25	2.18	3.37	5.17
New Westminster	Mun. 20,000	.64	1.60	2.40	3.60	6.00
Edmonton	Mun. 85,774	1.00	1.19	2.37	4.75	9.50
Regina	Mun. 53,354	1.00	1.33	2.28	4.18	7.50

With regard to the rates charged to very large users of electricity, such as the B.C. Cement Co., Nanaimo-Duncan Utilities, Ltd., and Victoria Street Railway as referred to in the report, such differences are perfectly usual and common to all light and power systems in all cities and have been justified in hundreds of cases before public utility commissions. Incidentally the figures given in the report in regard to the above companies are quite inaccurate. The same remark applies to the figures in regard to the rate of return earned by the company.

According to the press, the report contains the following:

"Excessive charges overall, gross discrimination between classes of customers, irregularities and unjust charges, such as not paying interest upon deposit moneys, are possible solely because there is no semblance of utility regulation or control in Victoria either by municipal, provincial or Dominion authorities."

At a casual reading the above would give the impression that the City's Expert had found such irregularities in his analysis of the operations of this Company in Victoria.

We do not believe that these insinuations reflect the attitude of the citizens of Victoria towards this Company. In over forty years of service we have consistently aimed at improving service and reducing rates. In 1915 the average rate per k.w.h. we received from Domestic customers was over 10c. In 1937 it was less than 3 1/2c. Successive reductions have been made notwithstanding the fact that the costs of wages, materials and general taxes are very much higher now than in 1915.

We will leave it to the Reader to form his own judgment as to whether the impression suggested by the Report in regard to the Victoria rates is a reasonable one.

Teacher Is Honored by Community

In honor of Miss Lois Peacey, who has been principal and teacher of the Langford School for over fourteen years, a community party was held on Monday evening in the school, under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher Association. Miss Hilda Guy, vice-president, and Mrs. P. N. Welch, social convener, arranged the party.

Mr. E. F. LeQuenne, school trustee, was chairman and spoke of the good work done by Miss Peacey in the school and district, and expressed the good wishes of pupils, parents and friends for her happiness on her new life. Mrs. D. B. F. Bullen, chairman of the school board, presented Miss Peacey with a silver tea service and corsage bouquet on behalf of the P.T.A., the Girls' W.A. of St. Matthew's Church and the community at large. Little Mary Lou Findler, on behalf of St. Matthew's Guild, gave her a "bouquet" of dusters. Miss Helen Kelly spoke of the satisfaction Miss Peacey would have in watching the life-progress of the pupils who had been under her care.

A number of these pupils contributed to the programme. Miss Cecil Temple, one of the younger girls, gave a short piano solo; David Seafe and Almer Olson played popular accordion and violin selections; Miss Margaret Merry played "Liebestraum" on the piano; Miss Elizabeth Welch, accompanied by Mrs. J. C. Nimmo, sang several contralto solos. Misses Nimmo and Mrs. Vilma French sang, and Mr. T. Norman recited.

Bows of golden marigolds formed the room decorations, and the social committee, Mrs. C. Willard, Mrs. W. H. Goodman and Miss L. Savory, assisted by Mrs. Matson, served refreshments.

Weddings

CAREY—CALLIN

Miss Marjorie McPhee Callin, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Callin, of Courtenay, became the bride of Mr. Richard Norton Carey, eldest son of Capt. and Mrs. J. Carey, of Royston, on August 3, at a ceremony performed at St. George's United Church, Courtenay, with Rev. Peter Henderson officiating.

Mrs. Arthur Jackon presided at the organ, and during the service the congregation sang "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden."

Wearing a white princess ankle-length frock of Alencon lace, fashioned on fitted lines with Peter Pan collar, and fingerless veil held in place with a cluster of orange blossoms, the bride was given in marriage by her father. Her bouquet was of bronze tallman roses and white gardenias. Miss Evelyn White of Ladysmith, was the bridesmaid, and her gown was of blue net and her bouquet was of pink and white sweet peas and stocks.

A reception was held at the future home of the bride and groom on Courtney Avenue. Assisting in receiving were the bride's mother, who wore a navy redingote ensemble and picture hat to match, and a corsage bouquet of lemon colored gladioli, and the groom's mother, who chose a navy silk suit with coat and hat to match. Her corsage bouquet was pink carnations. The reception was held in the garden, and assisting in serving were Miss Eileen Thompson, Namaimo; Miss Peggy Johnson, of Ladysmith; Mrs. Gordon Douglas and Mrs. W. Urquhart, of Courtenay. The best man proposed the toast to the bride and groom, which was responded to by the groom. Rev. P. Henderson wished the young couple happiness.

For going away the bride wore an afternoon suit, dressmaker style, in navy blue with a peplum at the waist, with which she wore a dusky pink sheer blouse and linen hat. Mr. and Mrs. Carey left on a honeymoon trip motorizing in the south. They will make their home in Courtenay.

and Yugoslavia. Thus created the minority problems which still exist. The treaty also limited Hungary's army to 35,000 men.)

AUTONOMY PROBLEM

Just as Hitler wants autonomy in return to Germany, of Czechoslovakia's 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans Hungary was pictured as in favor of the autonomy of Hungarians in Czechoslovakia, if not their return.

Should Hungary's minority dispute with Czechoslovakia be settled her demands for revision of conditions for the minority in Yugoslavia might be forgotten. It was indicated, carrying out the scheme of Hitler and Premier Mussolini for reconciliation between Hungary and Yugoslavia.

MUST DECIDE SOON

BUDAPEST, Aug. 23 (AP)—A German diplomat who refused to be quoted, declared tonight that Hungary will have to decide soon between Bled and Berlin.

This referred to efforts of the Little Entente—Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia to align Hungary on their side while Germany was attempting to bring the nation under her sphere of influence.

In closing sessions of a conference at Bled, Yugoslavia, the Little Entente nations:

Granted Hungary military equality, thus sweeping away military clauses of the Great War Trianon Treaty by abrogating its armistice.

Announced that six agreements—non-aggression pacts and minority agreements between Hungary and the Little Entente nations separately—would be concluded in the near future.

Italian observers said the Little Entente's decision was "in line with Italian policy." Representatives of the Little Entente nations hailed results of the conference as "enormous progress towards peace and security in neutral Europe."

friends had been sitting on the front porch when they saw a blast coming. They went into the house for shelter. Only the fact that a corner of the main floor, where they crouched, was not destroyed, saved them. Their kitchen stove was found over a hill, 100 yards from the site of the house. Cattle in the barn were killed.

Matt Allanan and his family were left homeless after their house and garage had been leveled by the wind. It was not known immediately if any members of the family had been injured.

LIGHTNING SPEED

C. J. Millroy, foreman in charge of a telephone line crew, near Pine River, said the storm descended with lightning speed, leaving destruction behind it.

The farmhouse of the Pillo's was a frame cottage, but there is nothing left of it this morning. They also had a big frame barn, but it is scattered in pieces for hundreds of feet. Two, and maybe three cows were killed. How those in the house escaped is a miracle.

I watched the hurricane come and go. It did not steer a straight course, but came from the northwest, veered suddenly and sharply from our farmhouse to the other, then swinging across the Whitefish River and ripped away the telegraph poles.

POLES BLOWN DOWN

William Harrin, stationmaster at the Silver Mountain depot of the Canadian National Railways, said the wind blew down telegraph poles along the right-of-way.

"I heard the approach of the storm at my home," he said. "There was no rain, no lightning and no thunder. It came from the northwest, a big, dark cloud that came down close to the earth. It came with such great speed that it was not until later we could realize what had happened."

Both boats left on the return trip to the Mainland port at 6 p.m.

SHARK'S VICTIM

After forty-five years of diving for coins in Singapore waters, Minigui Bin Silat, one of the oldest fishing divers known there, was killed by a shark recently when he dived for money thrown by passengers of the Nederland Line vessel, Marnix van St. Aldegonde. His left arm was bitten off at the elbow, and big pieces of flesh were taken off both his legs. When the vessel arrived, Minggu and his companions surrounded the stern of the ship and began diving for coins. Minggu dived once and came up safely. Then he went down again. Passengers on board the ship saw the diver turn red around the spot where he dived, and a few moments later the old diver appeared shouting for help. His companions hauled him out of the water, and were rushing him ashore when he died.
